To whom it may concern

Across the UK, thousands of schools are deeply committed to Fairtrade. There are around a thousand with a Fairtrade School Award, and many thousands more who share our passion and commitment to making trade work for everyone. Koolskools form an important part of the Fairtrade movement in education. Koolskools have now been supplying Fairtrade cotton clothing, in the form of school and work clothing, in the UK for over ten years.

The Koolskools business model has great potential for social impact and provides excellent learning opportunities for school communities. Koolskools shares our commitment to ensuring that young people understand the impact of their own purchasing decision and the wider systems at play within global supply chains.

The Koolskools team have strong relationships with the producers and workers in their supply chains, and can speak from first-hand experience about the people who produce the garments they sell, and the difference that Fairtrade has made to their lives.

We have worked closely with Koolskools in an education context, and their work supports the Fairtrade Schools' programme. We are proud to support each other's work.

Koolskools strive to create positive impact within producer communities and the UK. Their work is highly valued by the Fairtrade Foundation.

Yours faithfully,
